GLAZING

Aristokraft's Hand-Contoured Glazing™ is an additional step in the finishing process that highlights door detail. It is important to realize that the designer look of glazing is achieved through a special process.

Because the glaze is individually hand applied, the color saturation ranges from even and consistent to varied and dramatic. The result is a one-of-a-kind look with the characteristics that make glazing so desirable.

CHARACTERISTICS

MAPLE

- Subtle grain pattern
- Smooth, uniform appearance
- Color ranges from creamy white to pale red/brown within a panel
- May include “bird’s eye” dots and mineral streaks

CHERRY

- Color ranges from tan blonde to deep brown within a panel
- Cherry darkens naturally as it ages, blending hues from golden yellow to deep red

OAK

- Very strong, open grain pattern
- Color may vary from salmon red to dark cinnamon within a panel
- Mineral deposits add color accents of green, yellow or black
- May include random worm holes, knots and wild-grain patterns

BIRCH

- Tight wood grain appearance
- Small, random tick marks
- Color may range from creamy white to pale reddish brown within a panel

RUSTIC BIRCH

- May contain pin holes, open knots, small cracks, bird pecks, mineral streaks and grain variations

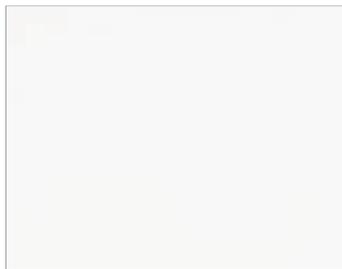

HICKORY

- Strong, dramatic grain pattern
- Color may range from blonde to dark brown
- Natural beauty enhanced by random worm holes and knots

PURESTYLE™

- Displays the precision of a paint, the durability of a laminate and the sensibility of those who care about creating a better environment — inside and outside of their homes.

THERMOFOIL

- Sleek surface
- Durable performance
- Carefree maintenance
- White or Antique color may change slightly over time, depending on environmental conditions

Since no two trees are alike in grain or texture, “nature’s fingerprint” is never the same in two pieces of wood; variations in color and grain are natural characteristics. Cabinet woods are stained to obtain as consistent a tone as possible, while preserving the interest and charm. These grain patterns lend to the distinctive beauty of the cabinet.
